Procurement

Our materials team have long established relationships with a wide variety of suppliers. This ensures our clients benefit from competitive pricing and on-time delivery. We have dedicated, in-house inspection control to ensure the best possible delivered quality.

Assembly

Vacuumatic has a rich history of precision mechanical assembly, from individual assemblies to complete production lines, generally in small to medium volumes. Our assembly standards are exacting and we always ensure high levels of repeatability. We have a background in precision engineering and manufacturing and have a tool room on site to support customised requirements. We are engineers at heart and take great pride in the products we manufacture.

With parts manufactured both in house and using the best partner companies, we ensure the best response at competitive prices.

Electrical Assembly and Test

From complex panel wiring down to simple cable assemblies, your product will not work without reliable interconnect. Our skilled staff make sure cabling is an art form, not a weak link.

Our trained staff can test down your product, and fault-find proactively to minimise the potential for downtime after delivery.

Packing and Shipping

Vacuumatic has a proud history as an export company. We ship product to over 100 countries and work together with established partners to offer an enviable shipping service. Whether we are returning your product to you, or shipping it direct to your customer, you can be sure of a high quality and reliable service.

Design Engineering

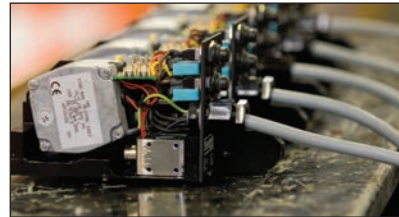

We can work with you to help you realise your product design. From ensuring product requirements are effectively captured right through the mechanical, electrical and software design processes and into manufacture.

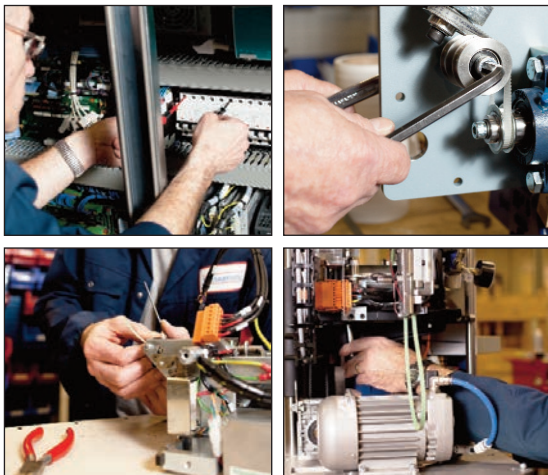

Commitment to Quality

Vacuumatic is an ISO9001 accredited company. The company has a culture of continuous improvement. The very highest standards are sought throughout the company. Each and every member of staff understands the importance of their contribution. It is this commitment to quality that ensures we provide you with the best possible service.
